Coastal Bliss in South Carolina's Sea Islands

RESORT

A new destination retreat on the banks of the Kiawah River surrounded by miles of golden spartina grass, giant oak trees and shallow marsh flats. Cool breezes blow through cottage-inspired guest rooms and river-view cabanas overlooking vast expanses of marshland. Large furnished porches offer a peaceful oasis to hear the whistles of Carolina wren as you page through a good book and enjoy the simple pleasures of island life. The main lodge is the heart of the resort where you can rock in wicker chairs on the wraparound wooden porch or enjoy cocktails from a riverside pool cabana as the sun sets over the marsh savannahs.

ACCOMMODATIONS

Evoking the spirit of old-time summer retreats, The Dunlin's 72 guest rooms overlook the glittering Kiawah River. Designed by Amanda Lindroth, inside you'll find honey oak floors, white beadboard walls and mint green and wicker accents that nod to classic southern style, while deep soaking tubs, built-in closets and linen fabrics stamped with signature prints add an atmosphere of home.

52 rooms and 20 suites

DINING

Linnette's, the signature restaurant, is set up for multigenerational mealtimes. Simple and honest cuisine lets farm-fresh ingredients shine, adding wholesome flavor to the kitchen's Southern American culinary profile. The Willet Room is perfect for casual bites and libations in a convivial environment, while poolside dining is available at The Cove.

LOCATION

The Charleston Sea Islands float like a string of sparkling beads along the Atlantic Coast. One of its finest, Johns Island, is home to The Dunlin, Auberge Collection. Here, sunny days and starry nights unfold to the rhythm of the tides where herons and osprey peck at fiddler crabs and redfish swim in the salty currents. Ribbons of gently flowing waterways curve around an abundance of wooded trails, hammock islands and fertile farmland where time moves slowly and the simple pleasures of lowcountry living are a boundless source of joy.

Only 20 miles from Charleston.

WELLNESS

Living well is a lifestyle at Kiawah River. A soundtrack of birdsong accompanies you on long walks down pretty paths of shady oak and pine trees. All around, the wetlands hum with life as their still surface mirrors the kaleidoscopic beauty of sunset skies. Taste the season when biting into luscious berries and melons from the farm. At Aster, an Auberge Spa, book a bespoke facial in an airy treatment room or spend a sunny afternoon soaking in the sunshine in the meditation garden. With acres of enchanting countryside, fresh-air activities are always available to bring you closer to nature and those you love.
